OUR CRUISE ON THE "G. H. S."

We, the seniors, are on the last lap of our journey; we are approaching the final port.

Since we first started our trip on the "G. H. S.", we have been hoping and praying for the time when we could get off the ship for the last time. Now that the time when we dock is almost here, we would like to start our cruise all over again. But—Time marches on.

For the underclassmen there still remain two or three ports. At these ports they probably will sigh with relief as soon as they land, tired and weary. But if the part of the crew that is older could have a second chance, I am sure that we would make more of our cruise.

From the standpoint of knowledge, I think we would listen more attentively to the captain's commands; we probably would try to learn as much as we could while working in the engine-room or on the deck.

The sailors would really enjoy the work they do every day, I'm sure. For the most part, we would look forward to the next stop, but at the same time we would concentrate on today instead of thinking of tomorrow.

After the boat has carried us to each harbor, most of us forget that we must go back on board ship again. In the harbor we enjoy the release from routine, but as the clock rolls around, we dread the time when we must return.

Again, if we could do it all over, we would understand that working and studying bring enjoyment as well as satisfaction—the satisfaction of knowing that it is the work that we do today that will carry us through tomorrow.

When there is a heavy storm in mid-ocean, who is it that gets wet and injured? It is not only the sailors; there are also the officers who try so hard to keep us on our course. They spend their spare time and evenings trying to educate us in different lines—debating, dramatics, public speaking, and athletics.

We must think of these officers after we have gone ashore for the last time. Our advisers have been very kind and thoughtful.

I wonder if we do as much towards bettering our ship "G. H. S." as we should. Do we all scrub as many decks as we should? Do we keep our staterooms as tidy as possible? Let's try harder to be on the lookout for improvements. If we don't the time is coming when the "G. H. S." will no longer sail with the fleet on the high seas. It will always be in the harbor; while other vessels are having a good time skimming along over the waves.

Underclassmen, your trip is not over yet. Try hard to get as much out of the last lap as you can. Your future depends upon it.

One ship sails east, and another sails west,
With the selfsame winds that blow,
'Tis the set of the sails
And not the gales
That determine the way they go.

Like the winds of the sea are the ways of fate,
As we voyage along through life;
'Tis the set of the soul
That decides the goal,
And not the calm or the strife.

"I PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE"

I noticed the other morning in assembly, as we stood to salute the flag, just how much respect was given it. More than half of us stood slumped, ready to sit as soon as the pledge was over; of the other half, one-third talked or whispered, saying it half-heartedly; due respect was paid by the remaining two-thirds only. This flag and this pledge must mean something to us. Most of us repeat it without thinking—through force of habit. Few of us ever stop to consider just what it means.

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America.....

It is the duty of every citizen to proclaim his allegiance in return for political rights and privileges. These privileges, such as freedom of speech, press, and religion, are rights granted to the people by a constitutional form of government.

"And to the republic for which it stands. .

The republic for which this flag stands is our country. The supreme power is held by our people, and is exercised by representatives elected by, and responsible to us.

"One nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Our nation is divided, but only into states. It is not separated. It could not be, because our cause is a united one—liberty and justice for all. Liberty is freedom from restraint or compulsion, the power to do as one chooses. Justice, on the other hand, is the rendering to everyone his due; just treatment, be it reward or punishment, regardless of race or creed.

If we had just one more chance to salute the flag, we would pay much more respect. We would realize how much it means to us. We do not idolize our flag as a god; we respect it because it is the symbol of our freedom.

Let us stand erect, eyes on the flag, and say the pledge as if we meant it, glad that we are Americans.

THE VALUE OF DRAMATICS

There are many things to be said in favor of dramatics. It is a proven fact that you get from anything about what you put into it. I have found that this is true of acting. Last year something prompted me to try out for the junior play. That was what awakened me to the fact that acting truly is interesting. This year I made the Dramatic Club and actually got more pleasure from it than from anything else in my days at Gardiner High.

If a person is naturally good at things of that sort, he owes it to his school to give them his efforts; if, on the other hand, he is a little bashful about such things, he owes it to himself to overcome this fault. It is a wonderful gift to be able to talk when occasion requires it, and I actually know of business men who pay big money for training of this type. Isn't it much more sensible for us to obtain this training now for nothing?

Everyone, I don't care who he is, likes to be complimented. If we do something and know we did it well, it pleases us to know someone else appreciates the fact. Believe me, there is a thrill greater than a roller coaster ride when you are acting behind the footlights. There is plenty of work too, but I assure you that if you put in your best effort, you will be rewarded.

This work has also made me more conscious of my English. One must use good English in this highly educated world, and one of the best places to get training outside of the classroom is in plays or public speaking.

The Dramatic Club is losing many experienced members this year, and this means there will be vacancies to be filled. We need members who are interested in acting, interested enough to work to obtain the many gifts it has to offer. I have outlined only a few of the advantages of belonging to the Club, but I sincerely hope that some of you will be inspired to come and claim the many things it has to offer you.

CITY TREES AFTER SNOW

Desolate yesterday;
Shivering branches violet grey.

At night the stars sent down,
In pity of earth's nakedness,
A part of their own loveliness;
Tiny gleaming star-shapes
Lent each tree a crown.

Humble bushes, graceful trees
For one brief ecstatic day
Stood in radiant array—
None so beautiful as these.

That was just for one brief day;
Now the city has turned them grey.

CONFUCIUS IS JUSTIFIED

Herr Aachan was a pacifist. He sat in his gloomy little room, staring at his great-grandfather's saber, which had seen service under Marshal Blucher. Then, for some unknown reason, he recalled one of Confucius's greatest statements. "The greatest virtue of a quiet life is a dignified submission to circumstances". Submission, submission! but was it reasonable to submit under the circumstances? Last night, his brother had been ruthlessly dragged away by the Gestapo, "for questioning". Herr Aachan knew what that meant. Many of his friends, including his father, had been marched away on this pretext, but none of them had ever returned.

He thought of the peaceful days before the present regime had come into power, when all men, Aryan and non-Aryan, had lived side by side peacefully and happily. Life had been tranquil then. Now, every day the mangled bodies of one or more of his friends was found, covered with dust and blood, lying in the gutter.

Their sacred cathedrals had been desecrated, their shops had been pillaged, and finally many innocent people, including his brother, had been wantonly murdered or tortured.

His eyes became more fixed, and a revengeful expression came over his dark, drawn face. He stood up and took the saber from the wall. With uneasy steps he walked back to his bed and pulled a grindstone from under it. Efficiently he began to grind the age-old nicks out of the weapon until it shone more brightly and its edge became as sharp as a razor. He sat down to wait patiently until the sun sank beneath the mountains, and clouds took its place, transforming the sky into a fleecy blanket.

Towards seven o'clock he heard a step outside and peered through a concealed hole in the wall which served as a secret window. Disappearing around the corner of the building was a man in the gray-green uniform of the Gestapo.

Silently Herr Aachan picked up his saber. He climbed out through a window and dropped noiselessly into the alley, along which he stealthily approached the doorway. In the doorway the Gestapo officer was trying to force his way into the house.

With care Herr Aachan raised the saber and brought it down with dreadful force upon the German's unprotected neck.

The head spun away into the corner. The uniform was a disguise, for the face which looked up at Herr Aachan had belonged to his brother.

A VISIT TO THE HAYDEN PLANETARIUM

About a month ago I took a trip to New York. Of all the beautiful, magnificent, and unbelievable things I saw, the Hayden Planetarium interested me most. It is one of the latest contributions to the great city, showing the supreme splendor of the astronomical world.

First, we attended a lecture, which I might have found very interesting if I had not been so anxious to see the main part of the show. At last the lecture was over and my excitement was growing greater and greater every minute. The first thing that caught my eye was a large network of iron bars at the back of the room. In a short time, a man approached and standing directly in front of the bars, he proceeded to give a short talk on three probable ways in which the world might end.

The lights were dimmed and finally darkness fell over the room and stars slowly twinkled out, giving the appearance of an illuminated heaven. Then suddenly a voice boomed, "Watch that moon!" As the moon gradually grew nearer and nearer, I sat tense on the edge of my seat, expecting almost anything. There was a loud crash. The moon had struck the earth! I had never seen such realistic effects in my life: thunder, lightning, and everything that is part of a violent storm.

I had hardly had time to recover from that, when I saw a comet slowly heading for the earth. Closer and closer it came and then finally the inevitable collision, which caused a deafening roar. The earth had been blown up. What a tingling sensation raced through me!

Then the lecturer began to tell us of another way in which the world might come to an end. A slow rumbling sound could be heard, gradually growing louder and louder and resulting in the explosion of the sun. The earth had burned into a great flaming ball. The lecturer said that this was, inevitably, the way in which the world will come to an end. I left the Planetarium much soberer and more thoughtful than I was when I entered.

AN EMBARRASSING DAY FOR H. E. JONES

At the soft chiming of a quiet alarm clock, a perfectly manicured hand slowly reached out from between two lavender silk sheets to silence it.

H. E. Jones got out of bed and stood before an open window, slowly counting from one to ten and alternating with deep breaths. He then got back into bed and rang for his servant. In bachelor luxury he ate a big breakfast and dressed for the office. Taking a last look in the full length mirror, he beheld a plump figure with a shining pink and white face and nicely groomed mustache. He shrugged his shoulders and muttered to himself "H. E., you're all right."

Nothing cluttered the polished top of H. E.'s desk. A few papers and a few of the most expensive cigars were the only things to be found there. Just before lunchtime a commotion was heard in the outer office. "I don't care if he is busy. I'm an old friend of his; I want to see him," a loud, hoarse voice was exclaiming. Into H. E.'s sanctum strode a red-faced, stubbily-bearded farmer, who slapped the business man on his flabby shoulders and exclaimed, "Well, am I glad to see you, Hiram Elmer. How'dye like to be back on the old farm?"

H. E.'s face got redder and redder, to think that at last one of his schoolmates had caught up with him. Oh, if he could only forget that name of his. Hiram was bad enough, but to have Elmer tacked on to that! H. E. thought, "I must get Herb out of here. Even my secretary doesn't know what my initials stand for. What can I do?" Finally he said, "Here, Herb, have a cigar. You say you're here only for the day. Too bad. Sorry, but I can't talk to you now. Have a business meeting to attend."

"I'm sorry," said Herb. "I kinda counted on seein' you. Ain't seen you for a long time. Nice place you got here, Hiram. I'll have to bring the folks up here so they can——" But Herb was interrupted by a loud slam, and before he knew it he was on his way out of the building.

Behind his large polished desk H. E. sank down in relief. He'd forgotten that he had seen his secretary go our for lunch as Herb came in. He was saved. No one yet knew what "H. E." stood for.

WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANT THIS YEAR

This year in cities and towns all over America everyone was getting ready for the Christmas holidays. People were planning to buy gifts to give to their friends. Stores were filled with people buying fruits, vegetables, and fancy candy for the Christmas feast. Although many friends and families did not feel the security of warm homes and nice things to eat, they were happy because they were allowed to celebrate Christmas in a land of freedom. We did not have to strain our ears for the sirens warning us of an approaching air raid, to crowd into bomb-proof cellars like sardines in a can in order to stay alive a little longer, nor to try to think where our next meal was coming from. We were safe. Many Americans went out and sang Christmas carols to their friends, while in Europe bombs were raining down on innocent people, people that had never done anything wrong in their lives. Why should they be made to suffer for other people's greed for power?

They were not allowed to celebrate Christmas as they had in the past. Most of them had to stay in bomb-proof cellars. They were separated from their families by oceans. Many of them did not even have a place to stay.

We complain because we have to follow a few simple rules; the people in Europe have their lives based on strict rules. We live and act as we please; they can not do what they like. They are prisoners of a selfish ruler who considers his word law; we do not have to live according to some one else's rules. Of course, we have to abide by the laws, but that is not like Europe's way of living. We believe we were created free and equal. We are allowed to have our fun, and we do not have to ask a ruler's consent for that privilege. People in Europe dream of coming to America because of our way of living. They consider our land a heaven on earth.

We should consider ourselves lucky if we were just with our families at Christmas and be thankful for what we have and not want more. Let us all hope that Christmas next year will be different from what it was in 1940 for the people in Europe, and that it will have its real meaning: "Peace on earth, good will toward all men."

Time—March 20, 1941
Place—Room 2—Senior English Class
Characters—The Unfortunate English Students. Mrs. Smith— The Fortunate English Teacher

The door opens—enter, Mrs. Smith. Everybody sits—too quiet. It's too late now! No time to ask questions or sharpen a pencil. We're trapped!! Mrs. Smith, peering over the top of her glasses, looks at each of us in turn, then demands, "What have you for the Quill?" We stare at her and then stare back at each other—"But, what do you want? What shall we write?"

"Anything—that's sensible", says she.

"Sensible?" we all echo back at her.

"Yes, my children—sensible. I am asking you, the master minds in our midst, to have something ready by tomorrow." (Flattery, she believes, is the only method of persuasion). We gaze blankly out of the window and chew on our pencils, while she stands there, drumming her pencil.

As no one utters a sound, Mrs. Smith prepares to leave us to our meditation. Before she leaves, she says, "Now remember, children, I shall come around tomorrow and gather up your information."

If she only knew that none of us (I particularly) is very clever. She turns on her heel and leaves us to our luckless fate.

PICTURES IN THE FIRE

It's fun to sit before an open fireplace and see the pictures flash and disappear. All one needs is the crackling log fire and a touch of imagination.

Once I saw the thousand ships of Troy launched. They were flaming red and laden with soldiers. For a moment they rocked and then vanished from sight.

Then I saw Aeneas. He was dressed all in scarlet and his hair was long and streamed down his back. Over his clothes were gold ornaments that glittered. He seemed to bow before me and as he disappeared, it seemed I heard him say, "Dido". Only that.

Next I saw a pine, straight and lonely. It seemed to be weeping. Tiny drops dripped from the limbs. That, I thought, must be the Lonesome Pine.

Finally the tree disappeared, and a beautiful dancer followed. I saw her move gracefully into a dance, her scarlet draperies floating around her.

Soon I found myself looking at a field of slender corn. Tiny black and red birds fluttered overhead. Then it wasn't corn but a mass of men moving on light feet. I could see their spears and shiny swords. Gradually they marched from sight.

Then I saw Joan of Arc. She was lashed to a streak of light and the hot flames were leaping upward. Suddenly, a crash. I sat up with a jump. The fire had burned low. My pictures had called the curtain.

This is a very amusing pastime. Try it sometime and see how many fire pictures are in your fireplace.

SCHOOL NEWS

DRAMATIC CLUB

The first meeting of the Dramatic Club was held to elect officers. The following were chosen: president, Thomas Kelley; vice-president, Charles Mooradian; secretary, Ruth Patterson; treasurer, Gertude Farnham.

SEPTEMBER 24. Tryouts were held to choose new members of the Dramatic Club. The total membership is now forty.

JANUARY 31. The Dramatic Club play, under the capable direction of Miss Anna Longfellow, was staged with great success. "Our Boarding House" was the play chosen and the cast of characters was as follows:

Cora Claypool	ESTHER MERRILL
Ella March	MARTHA HAMLIN
Maybelle Gilfoyle	CHRISTINE GALLANT
Phoebe Sweet	MARIAN PIKE
Noah Lot	THOMAS KELLEY
Happy Huyler	JAMES DESMOND
William Slyde	LINWOOD PEASLEE
Sadie Slyde	MARY GOUD
Bill Slyde	WESTON HAMLIN
Iona Slyde	RITA BUCKLEY

MARCH 21. Gardiner came second in the preliminaries of the one-act play contest, being defeated by Cony. The Gardiner play was "Grandma Pulls the Strings". The cast was as follows:

Grandma	MARTHA HAMLIN
Mrs. Cummings	PHYLLIS BAKER
Hildegarde Cummings	MARY GOUD
Julia Cummings	MARIAN PIKE
Nona Cummings Beaver	RITA BUCKLEY
William Thornton	JAMES DESMOND

LONG ASSEMBLIES

The program committee in charge of assemblies this year is Charles Storm, chairman: Perley Betts, Phyllis Drake, John Quinn, and Richard Gillespie.

DRAMATIC CLUB

NOVEMBER 8. The Collins Festival gave in assembly a short preview of the first of their series of entertainments.

OCTOBER 14. Miss Grace Phelan showed us some real typing. Miss Phelan is one of the fastest amateur typists in the world.

NOVEMBER 6. Mr. W. A. Wheeler gave us an interesting talk on railroads and their value.

The chairman of the Student Council committees took charge of assembly one morning, each one giving a short speech on the duties of his respective committee.

DECEMBER 13. The annual Athletic Fair was held with much success and pleasure. Two one-act plays were presented by members of the Dramatic Club, after which a dance was held in the gym and candy and cold drinks were sold at the booths.

JANUARY 30. Each member of the cast of the Dramatic Club play was introduced, and a few short previews were given.

We were especially favored by having a swing orchestra, made up largely of high school students, entertain us in assembly. The orchestra is led by Earland Welch and directed by James Desmond.

"G" CLUB MINSTREL

FEBRUARY 27 AND 28. The seventh annual minstrel show under the direction of Mr. David Kelley and Mr. Hinds was a great success. The setting this year was a courtroom with the endmen, Thomas Kelley, James Desmond, Charles Mooradian, Robert Leavitt, Arthur Fossett, and Robert Demers, acting as policemen. The interlocutor, in the part of judge, was Mr. Hinds.

BAND

The band, under the direction of Mr. Kelley, had an eventful year. At almost every football game the band appeared, accompanied by eight clever drum-majorettes and the cheerleaders. The band also entertained us in assembly.

ORCHESTRA

Through the capable leadership of Miss Towne, Gardiner High School had once more an orchestra to be proud of. It furnished the music at various plays throughout the year.

HI-Y CLUB

The officers of the Hi-Y Club for this year are president, Charles Storm; vice-president, Robert Bailey; secretary, Perley Betts; treasurer, Donald MacDonald. The aim of this club is to establish throughout the community high standards of Christian character.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

The Commercial Club held their first meeting to elect officers. Those elected were president, Dorothy Whittier; vice-president, Gertrude Farnham; secretary, Margaret Brooks; treasurer, Doris Colby. Miss Perry is the faculty adviser. At each meeting some entertainment has been provided.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Under the direction of Miss Charlotte Jewett, public speaking has had a successful year. Medals were given to Margaret Danforth and James Desmond in the school contest. Margaret Danforth was chosen to represent Gardiner High School in the preliminary of the Lydia Spear Contest at Winslow on April 4.

REMEMBRANCE

Lest we forget those who have come and gone, and one in particular who served so long and faithfully and gave so unstintingly of herself to the profession, let us call to mind some of our former teachers and friends.

Mr. Cooper, who from 1936 to 1940 taught general mathematics and served four successful years as coach, is now at Bar Harbor, where he is still carrying on in the same conscientious manner and doing a fine job.

Miss Plaisted, the very efficient teacher of typewriting and stenography from 1927 to 1940, has transferred her talents from the teaching profession to the medical. She is now office manager at the Dr. R. D. Simons Memorial Clinic, where she is happy in her work and a popular member of the organization.

Mr. Connors, the manual training teacher, resigned to take up the same type of work at Lewiston. He was a well liked and very efficient teacher at Gardiner High School from 1937 to 1941 and also successful as coach of the boys' Junior High basketball team.

Now we come to our dearly beloved and respected former librarian, Miss Marietta Parshley, who retired last year after faithfully serving the Gardiner schools for a long period. For the last eighteen years she has been librarian of the Alice M. Richards' Memorial Library at the High School, where she endeared herself to students and teachers alike with her pleasant manner and unselfish devotion to her work. On all the young people who knew her she has left a lasting impression of goodness and patience which they will always remember.

And so while we associate ourselves with the new friends, let us not forget the old.

SENIOR CLASS

The senior class held its first meeting shortly after the beginning of the school year. Thomas Kelley was elected president; Albert Hopkins, vice-president; Ruth Patterson, secretary and treasurer. The other officers elected were members to the student council who were to represent the senior class for the following year. These are: Rita Buckley, James Gingrow, Linwood Jackson, president; Robert Bailey, vice-president; Marion Pike, secretary.

Chairmen of the various committees who were not chosen until somewhat later than usual this year are as follows: Mary Goud, Welfare Committee; Charles Storm, Program Committee; James Gingrow, Boys' Lockers Committee; Virginia Wise, Public Service Committee; Thomas Kelley, Grounds Committee; Alfred Ladner, Halls Committee; and Rita Buckley, Girls' Lockers Committee.

On November 1, 1940, was given another annual senior play under the direction of Miss Anna B. Longfellow of the faculty. "Try It With Alice" was presented to one of the largest audiences which attended any play this year.

Cast of Characters

Mrs. Hamilton	Colleen DeLong
Mrs. Hill	Regina Wehrwein
Mabel Hamilton	Marian Pike
Billy Kirkwood	Thomas Kelley
Harry Mattox	James Desmond
Leo Ashton	Perley Betts
Arabella Winters	Mary Goud
Judge Applegate	Alfred Ladner
Jack Carlton	Merton Avery
Alice Tanner	Ruth Patterson
Betty Ingasoll	Betty Curry
Sam Ashton	Murray Shepard

After the annual Christmas recess Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Gardiner invited the senior class to a party at the Oaklands January 3. The class as a whole marked this as one of the outstanding events of the year.

Pauline Fuller was elected as D. A. R. representative from Gardiner High School.

On March 7 all members of the senior class were requested to write a competitive essay, titled, "Why I am proud to be an American". The winners of this contest which was sponsored by the D. A. R. organization will be announced at graduation exercises.

BARBARA EVELYN GORDON

JUNIOR CLASS

The junior class of Gardiner High School met on September 17, 1941, and elected the following officers: Robert Bailey, president; Bert Hoyle, vice-president; Phyllis Drake, secretary and treasurer; and Janice Hinckley, representative to the student council.

The junior-senior booth at the Athletic Fair took in $21.13 net profit. Candy, soft drinks and ice cream were sold.

Four juniors were elected to the Dramatic Club: Margaret Clark, Martha Clark, Phyllis Baker, and Esther Merrill.

Janette Manson was elected assistant editor of the "Quill"; Mary Demers, assistant business manager; and Robert Jacobs, class reporter.

Class rings, Mr. Danforth told us, are to be bought this year at Lincoln Harlow's jewelry store on Water Street.

The junior play cast was chosen by Mr. Danforth, Mr. Kelley, and Miss Perry. The cast is as follows:

Mrs. Oral Skipworth	Martha Clark
Imogene	Christine Gallant
Hank	Robert Jacobs
Dorothy Brill	Esther Merrill
Peggy Walters	Mary Ann Demers
Gladys Hermann	Betty Buker

Nancy Lane	Madolyn Malcolm
Kate Roberts	Phyllis Drake
Rosina Blandish	Odessa Grant
Barry Richards	Everett Dunton
Minnie Peters	Martha Hamlin
Henry Banks	Merton Kilgore
Marcella Turner	Katherine Baker
Bob Roberts	Earl Beckwith
Sergeant Kelly	Allan Fisher
Ken Howard	Charles Mooradian
"Limpy"	Bernard Berry

The play, "Headed For Eden", was chosen by Mr. Danforth and a play committee of Charles Mooradian, Maxine Leavitt and Mary Ann Demers. The play is to be given on April 25, 1941, in the auditorium of the high school.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

The sophomore class meeting was held September 19, 1940, in the Auditorium. The officers elected were president, John Bailey; vice-president, Francis Brown; secretary and treasurer, Lucille Buckley; representative to the Student Council, Ann Hathaway.

The freshman-sophomore reception took place September 27. It was a new experience to the freshmen and the sophomores looked forward to the event with as much anticipation as last year.

The annual Dramatic Club tryout was held and the sophomores chosen were Dorothy Calderwood, Richard Hammond, Weston Hamlin, and Linwood Peaslee. Dorothy Calderwood, Ann Hathaway and Weston Hamlin took part in the Athletic Fair plays. All did well. Ann Hathaway's ability as an actress was outstanding.

The sophomores and freshmen combined their tables at the Fair, and we had fancy work and other articles. The decorating was exceptionally good this year, the color scheme being yellow and white and red and white.

We had a large number of boys from our class on the football team this year. Norman Hersom won his letter.

FRESHMAN CLASS

The freshman class held its first meeting September 20 for the purpose of electing officers. The following were chosen: president, Calvin Bailey; vice-president, Fred Trafton; secretary-treasurer, Mary Anne Dineen; representative to the student council, Ruth Ann Looke.

The annual freshman-sophomore reception was held September 27 in the gymnasium, which was colorfully decorated in red and yellow, the colors of the two classes. Games were played under the direction of Mr. Danforth and were enjoyed by everybody.

At the Athletic Fair the freshmen had a white elephant table which was decorated with red and white, the class colors. A brightly lighted Christmas tree stood at either end of the table. This table was very profitable.

The idea for the "tacktack" designs used for the senior fortunes originated with Perley Betts and was carried out by a committee of senior members of the Quill Staff.

For several of the snapshots for our sport page we are indebted to Clarence McKay of the class of 1940, who also drew the design for our seal last year.

ATHLETICS

The Gardiner Tigers reported eagerly for their first fall practice with a new coach. Coach Danny Alvino, with the aid of seven returning lettermen and many others of experience, combined a strong, hard charging line with a swift and shifty backfield to produce a team which passed through the season undefeated and unscored-on except by the small but scrappy Wilton Academy team.

The Gardiner players opened their season against a full letterman team at Farmington, and emerged, after sixty minutes of battle, with a 9-0 victory. So they went through the season, their spectacular playing sometimes winning by only a single score. At the end of the season the team not only won the Kennebec Valley championship but were also presented with jackets by a group of interested townspeople, and with a beautiful trophy by the Gardiner Lodge of Elks.

When the allstate team was picked, Charles Mooradian was named on the first team, and Linwood Jackson and Raymond Kidder on the reserves. Special mention was given to Robert Leavitt, Lawrence Hersom, Richard Giberson, Albert Giberson, and Bertrand Hoyle.

Those receiving letters and jackets were Donald MacDonald, Charles Mooradian, Linwood Jackson, Robert Leavitt, Raymond Kidder, Winston Hoyle, Lawrence Hersom, Richard Giberson, Albert Giberson, Robert Bailey, Kenneth Wing, Merton Kilgore, Stanley Dill, Sheldon Kidder, James Gingrow, Norman Hersom, Bertrand Hoyle, Richard Foye, James Desmond, Fred Moody, Thomas Kelly, Theodore Dale, Bert Lasselle, Hollis Eastman, John Hurley, and managers Jerome Monaghan and Wilson Roberts.

Gardiner	13	0	Cony

HOCKEY

Once Coach Palmer Hind's icebirds were started, they skated through an amazing season, not so outstanding for the games they won as for the way in which they played. They fought hard every minute of every game, and every team they played, whether that team was victorious or defeated, knew it had been in a hockey game.

The boys played outstandingly against Waterville and Lewiston, being beaten by Waterville 5-1 in the first game and showing a 5-5 tie in the second. The Gardiner pucksters led both Waterville and Lewiston all the way in the second games only to be tied by Waterville and beaten by Lewiston in the last two minutes of play.

Much praise must be given to Jimmy Gingrow for his spectacular playing in the line and two defense men, Bert Hoyle and Doc Hersom, these two boys being considered two of the best defense men in the state. There were many under-classmen on the team who showed that they could handle a puck successfully; so the team should have a good season next year.

Those who received letters were James Gingrow, Lawrence Hersom, Everett Mansir, Bert Hoyle, Winston Hoyle, Hubert Thayer, Dick Giberson, Richard Cusick, Hartwell Marston, Norman Hersom, Bob Rainey, Palmer Hinds, Jr., and Manager Perley Betts.

Following is the schedule of games:

Gardiner	1	5	Waterville
Gardiner	5	5	Waterville
Gardiner	7	1	Rockland
Gardiner	2	5	Lewiston
Gardiner	1	2	Lewiston
Gardiner	7	5	Madison

BOYS' BASKETBALL

After a three year lapse, basketball found its way back this year into the competitive sports of Gardiner High School. Coach Alvino undertook the task of producing a basketball team from boys who had played in intramural games, but who had never played on a varsity high school squad, and achieved considerable success, emerging from a ten-game schedule with five wins and five losses.

The following have won their letters; seniors, Albert Hopkins, Richard Foye, Murray Shephard, Raymond Kidder; sophomores, Gene Mooers, Wallace Shepard, Kenneth Shepard, Francis Whalen, Charles Cole, and Joe Gagnon.

Gardiner	24	20	Cony Reserves
Gardiner	20	49	Cony
Gardiner	24	41	Cony
Gardiner	35	28	Hallowell
Gardiner	31	36	Hallowell
Gardiner	19	29	Hebron
Gardiner	23	32	Kennebec School of Commerce
Gardiner	49	29	Gardiner Shell Oil Team
Gardiner	35	25	Richmond
Gardiner	23	20	Richmond

TRACK

Although lacking sufficient material for a complete track team, Gardiner entered three groups in the Kennebec Valley relay race. All three placed, the junior team running second and the sophomore and freshman teams claiming fourth place in their respective races. Much of Gardiner's scoring ability in the clashes depends on H. Marston and R. Giberson, who are outstanding in this line. There are six freshmen on the team who, Coach Hinds hopes, will develop into good runners. The team will enter at least one more meet this season.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Supervised by Miss Elizabeth Hunt, the girls continued their system of intra-mural basketball this year, because from it they not only learn the fundamentals of the game but also derive considerable enjoyment. Four seniors, who had played every year since entering high school, were selected as captains, and these girls chose their own teams. The teams and their captains are as follows:

Team	Captain	Games Won	Games Lost
Blue Streaks	Teresa Talbot	2	2
Silver Streaks	Dorothea Stevens	2	2
Tigresses	Connie Leighton	0	4
Bryant's Aces	Dorothy Bryant	4	0

BASEBALL

With the exception of catcher and first baseman, the same team which won the southern division title of Kennebec Valley last year is returning this year. The team is not particularly weakened by the vacancy in these two positions since there are many boys fully capable of filling the places. In fact, the number of candidates reporting for the first spring practice indicate that the team should be very strong in its reserve power. So, if hard work, number of players, and experience count for anything, Gardiner will be strong competition in the contest for the Kennebec Valley title.

JOKES

A form of humor enjoyed by some and misunderstood by most.

M. Danforth: You must be losing your eyesight, Father.
Mr. Danforth: Why, Marjorie?
M. Danforth: While I was going by your room the other day you winked at me.

Miss Jewett: Now, Mr. Quinn, what did Caesar exclaim when Brutus stabbed him?"
John Quinn: Ouch.

C. Leighton: I thought you and Jean weren't speaking.
P. Copeland: Oh! yes we are now. I wanted to find out what Florence told her about me.

English exam question: Give three collective nouns.
Student's Answer: Flypaper, wastebasket, and vacuum cleaner.

The Gay Nineties: A gig and a gal.

The Roarin' Twenties: A flivver and a flapper.

The Dipsey Forties: A plane and a Jane.

M. Shepard: Don't you think that I'm rather good looking?
B. Curry: In a way.
M. Shepard: What kind of a way?
B. Curry: Away off.

B. Lougee: What do you call the last teeth we get?
H. Roberts: False teeth.

M. Hamlin: I don't see how football players get clean.
J. Manson: Silly! What do suppose the scrub teams are for?

Mrs. Smith asked the pupils what they would do if they had five million dollars.

Every pupil except C. Storm began writing immediately. Charlie sat idle, twiddling his fingers and watching the flies on the ceiling.

Mrs. Smith collected the papers and Charlie handed in a blank sheet.

"How is this, Charles", asked Mrs. Smith. "Is this your essay? Every other pupil has written two sheets or more, while you have done nothing!"

"Well", replied Charlie, "that's what I would do if I were a millionaire."

T. Kelley: I got one of those suits with two pairs of pants.
J. Gingrow: How do you like it?
T. Kelley: Not so well. It's too hot wearing two pairs of pants.

A. Fossett: Why is your face so red?
M. Brooks: 'Cause.
A. Fossett: 'Cause why?
M. Brooks: Causemetics.

Mr. Kelley: Please follow the work on the board.
H. Merrill: Where's it going?

M. Goud: Ah, let me drink my fill of the exquisite beauties of this starry night.
E. Welch: O. K., there are both the Big Dipper and the Little Dipper.

Miss Goldsmith: What is the first and most important thing to do in preparing a meal?
R. Buckley: Find the can opener.

Mrs. Houdlette: How many bones have you in your body Miss Greenlaw?

G. Greenlaw: About 25,000.

Mrs. Houdlette: That's impossible. What do you mean?

G. Greenlaw: No, it's the truth; I ate sardines for lunch.

Miss Longfellow: (In French) Give the principal parts of 'dire'.

D. Bryant: Dear, dearer, dearest.

Mr. Danforth: What keeps the moon from falling?

R. Jacobs: Must be the beams.

Mrs. Smith: Where did dramas originate?

T. Dale: In Greece.

M. Shepard: (faint whisper) They must have had a slippery foundation.

Mrs. Carter: (In algebra) If you think these problems are hard, wait until you have three unknown numbers.

R. Cusick: Aw, that's nothing, I have six now.

Mrs. Pike: Now, Marion, don't you know that it isn't proper for a young girl of your age to turn around on the street and look at a strange man?

M. Pike: But Mother, I was only looking to see if he was looking to see if I was looking to see.

First Freshman: My girl left me without any reason.

Second Freshman: I thought someone left you without any.

Margaret Clark in English Class: I had it right on the slip of my tongue.

P. Manter: Why don't you like girls?

R. Leavitt: They're too biased.

P. Manter: Biased?

R. Leavitt: Yes, bias this and bias that until I'm busted.

G. Blair: Have you ever been in a railway accident?

R. Ware: Yes, once when I was in a train and we went through a tunnel I kissed the father instead of the daughter.

Mrs. Houdlette: What animal is satisfied with the least nourishment?

R. Wehrwein: The moth; it eats nothing but holes.

Customer: Your dog seems very fond of watching you cut hair.

Barber: It ain't that; sometimes I snip off a bit of a customer's ear.

J. Gingrow: Do girls really like conceited boys better than the other kind?

R. Patterson: What other kind?

Mr. Alvino: Why are you making faces at that bulldog?

Betty Ann: (wailing) He started it.

Cop: What do you mean, going fifty miles an hour!

Pretty Motorist: My brakes don't work, and I was hustling to get home before I had an accident.

Diner: Do you serve crabs here?

P. Betts: We serve anyone. Sit down.

B. Merrill: I'm continually breaking into song.

C. DeLong: You wouldn't have to if you'd get the key.

L. Jackson: Glad to see you, old man.

H. Stultz: Sorry, but I haven't a cent with me today.

L. Jackson: And at home?

H. Stultz: They're all very well thank you, very well.

What is it that makes everybody sick but those who swallow it?

Flattery.

What is the difference between a watchmaker and a jailer?

The one sells watches and the other watches cells.

When is a spanking like a hat?
When it is felt.

Which is the largest room in the world?
The room for improvement.

How can you make a tall man short?
Borrow ten dollars of him.

What is the difference between a hill and a pill?
A hill is hard to get up and a pill is hard to get down.

Why didn't they play cards on Noah's Ark?
Because Noah was sitting on the deck.

Why aren't short people as lazy as tall people?
Because they aren't as long in bed.

When does a chair dislike you?
When it can't bear you.

How can a man be assured of keeping a woman's love?
By not returning it.

She: (dining) Seems to me we won't hear so much jazz in the restaurants.
He: No, and as a consequence we hear more soup.

Taxi Driver: Cup of coffee, doughnuts, and some griddle cakes.
Waitress: Cylinder oil, couple of non-skid, and an order of blow out patches.

NORTHEASTERN UNIVERSITY

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The College of Business Administration offers young men a college program with broad and thorough training in the principles of business.

Under this program all students take courses in Accounting, Economics, Business Law, Finance, Marketing Management and Psychology during the first half of their college careers. With this excellent groundwork the student then specializes in one of the following fields for the last two years:

Accounting
Journalism
Banking and Finance
Marketing and Advertising
Public Administration
Industrial Administration

CO-OPERATIVE PLAN

The co-operative plan which is available beginning the second year in all courses provides for a combination of practical industrial experience with classroom instruction. After the freshman year students may alternate their periods of study with periods of work in the employ of business or industrial concerns at ten-week intervals. Under this plan the student is able to earn a considerable part of his college expenses and make business contacts which prove valuable upon graduation.

1941's Summer Classic!

Here's the summer's favorite frock—smart enough for town wear, casual enough for sports and country. It's the button-front shirtwaist idea, done with rounded shoulder yoke, a gored skirt and three big pockets. The colors are grand, the fabric is heavy sharkskin. $6.95

Other cotton frocks
from $1.98 and up.
